

Jewish Cemetery Deutschkreutz

Data

Description

The cemetery served as a burial site for the Jewish community of Deutschkreutz (Hebrew: Zelem) and the surrounding communities from 1759 to 1938. There were originally 1,800 graves, for which around 40 gravestones still exist. In addition, the cemetery is home to a mass grave containing Hungarian-Jewish slave laborers. The cemetery is kept locked, the key is available from the local municipal office. Guided tours can be organized through the municipal office.

sub-project 1

Description

Execution of works on the cemetery wall and monument

Renovation of the existing exposed brickwork wall and construction of a new entrance gate

The present exposed brickwork wall was repaired and restored and a new pillar bricked in. An opening was created in the wall for a new wrought-iron gate in keeping with style of the cemetery.

Erection of new fencework

Parts of the wall which could no longer be restored were removed and replaced by a wiremesh fence.

Clearing and leveling work

To the unoccupied rear of the cemetery, the ground was leveled. Wildly growing trees and plants were cleared from the entire site of the cemetery in order to ensure safety of movement and to prevent damage to the headstones resulting from uncontrolled growth.

Contracting services inventory and monument protection

All headstones were recorded and numbered. Additionally, damage to the headstones was recorded and the restoration aims were defined in consensus with the Federal Office for the Protection of Monuments.
